Making difficult decisions together

Have your say on the future of housing-related support – Proposed changes to services providing accommodation and support to people with mental ill health

We are facing budget pressures like never before and need to save £157 million by 2018.

Reductions in Government grants, inflation and greater demands on our budget for adult social care and vulnerable children mean we must re-think the way we deliver services. It means some services will remain, some will be run differently and some services will have to stop. We don't want to cut any services but we have no choice.

We've drawn up plans for how we think we can save money and this includes making changes to the funding of some of our housing-related support services. One of the changes we are considering is reducing funding to services which provide accommodation or support at home (floating support) to people with mental ill health. The proposal is to reduce the number of people supported by this service and reduce the length of time they are supported for.

We want to know what you think of this proposal before any final decisions are made. Please fill out the attached questionnaire or fill it out online at www.derbyshire.gov.uk/challenge

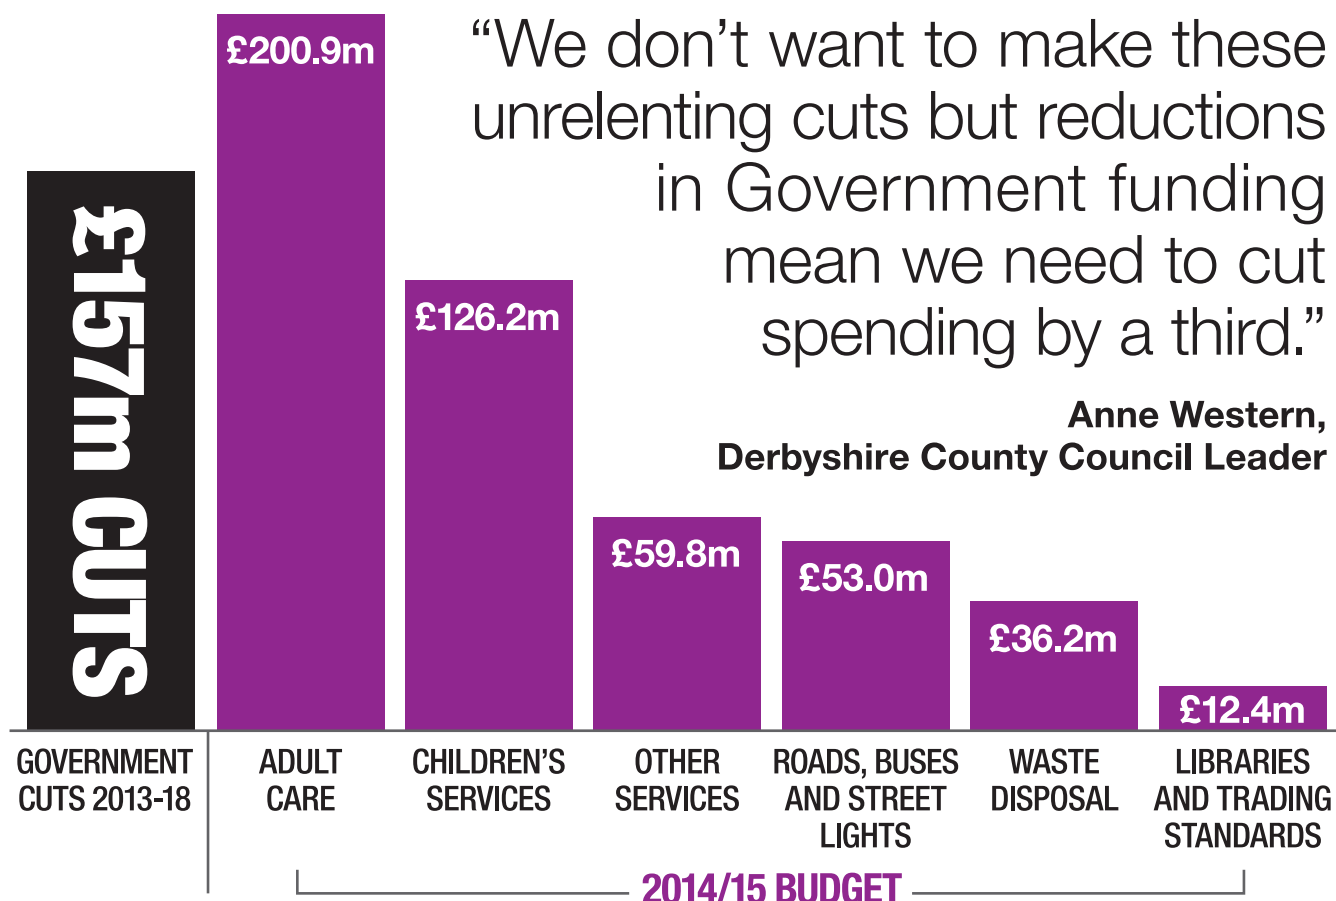

This consultation will run until 20 March 2015.

Putting our own house in order

We're saving money by:

- Making sure every penny is spent where it's needed most
- Reducing senior management
- Selling off redundant land and buildings.
