This site comprises the rear gardens of a number of residential properties in Allestree.

After changes to the definition of brownfield land in the revised PPS 3 this site is classed as greenfield. A previous application was made for 55 units on the site which was granted subject to a section 106 agreement. However, that scheme fell through and the site is now being promoted by a housebuilder.

There is high developer interest in the site and a planning application is likely to be submitted for around 14 dwellings in the near future. It is in a generally suitable location (an existing residential area in Allestree). However development would be subject to details being satisfactorily met. The site has had planning permission previously for a higher density residential scheme which was not implemented.

The SHLAA assesses the site as being available and suitable. It is also considered that the likely acceptable development density would be lower than the previous applications because of the character of the area and to make the site viable. It has therefore been given a capacity of 14 dwellings based on numbers provided by promoters. It should come into the the developable supply within 10 years but is nit currently considered a 5 year supply site.
